
END GBV in VET Project: An Innovative Online Platform for a Violence-Free Education Environment

The platform ensures a safe and confidential environment for students to report GBV incidents, with secure reporting tools and immediate access to trained support.

EVBB (European Association of Institutes for Vocational Training), as a consortium member of the END GBV in VET project, is pleased to present the newly developed online platform. This innovative platform aims to address Gender-Based Violence within VET schools, offering valuable resources and support to students, teachers, and parents.

The platform features interactive courses designed for students, teachers, parents, and ambassadors. These courses include engaging videos, quizzes, and activities to help users understand and address GBV effectively.

Key features of the platform include a secure incident reporting form that maintains student privacy and confidentiality, allowing users to report GBV issues easily and receive prompt support. Additionally, the platform offers online consulting with trained ambassadors for confidential and personalized guidance. Users can also access a range of resources through the platform, including various local support services and online consulting services provided by trained ambassadors.
